Autodesk's mission is to empower innovators with design and make technology so they can achieve the new possible. Since your students are the innovators and creators of tomorrow, it's important to empower them with skills they'll need to succeed.

In the latest episode of the CERTIFIED Educator Podcast, we were able to chat with Tanner Morris, the Product Manager over the Autodesk Certified User program. Tanner gives us all the details about the Autodesk certification program, including what topics are covered on the current exams, what resources are available for educators, and how to bring these skills to life for your students.
