South Plains College Uses ESB to Prepare Students

South Plains College in Levelland, Texas, is using the Entrepreneurship and Small Business certification program to help prepare students for an uncertain future. Entrepreneurial education helps students grow by teaching them to accept risk and failure as a part of that growth, all while supporting economic development within the communities where today's entrepreneurs will ultimately start their ventures.

South Plains College understands this and meets regularly with a board of industry professionals to ensure their curriculum is preparing students for an uncertain future. To help accomplish this goal, they leverage Certiport's ESB certification program. Read more about what and how they are supporting support their student entrepreneurs.
